1st share - Starfield: delay/phaser (#p3193)

by madbean » Sat Aug 25, 2018 4:19 pm

This one is called "Starfield". It's a delay with a kind-of phaser like quality you can dial in. I used the SVF block for the phaser portion. I kind of debated whether or not to put that just in the feedback path but I like it as is. Has a nice dreamlike quality to it on some settings. Feel free to modify - it could sound very cool in stereo with the right tweaks.

Ah yes, the SVF into a crossfade trick. Thanks for your contribution!

I'll have to give this a try.

I'll have a demo of the patch up on youTube on Friday, FYI.

Cool, feel free to add the link in the "Video Tutorials" section.

There will be somewhat of a commercial aspect to the video since it is a demo of my "Headtrip" project that's coming up. As long as that is not an issue I'd be happy to post it. Also, I will be doing a small tutorial video on SpinCAD for some of the madbean folks (just basics to get them started) so I'd be happy to post that as well.

Yeah that's OK. Maybe I will change my mind later but for now it's fine.

Better late than never. Here is a demo of the Starfield patch. It's in the first part of the demo. Don't think the youTube embed plugin is enabled on the forum so here's the link:

Also, if you like the other two patches in this demo (Parallax and Choirsaw), you can get the SpinCAD bank project and hex files here:Here is the corrected link: http://www.madbeanpedals.com/projects/_folders/FV1/pdf/Headtrip.pdf (http://www.madbeanpedals.com/projects/_folders/FV1/pdf/Headtrip.pdf)

Nice!

I'll admit that one problem I have with SpinCAD is the ability to stop messing around with the patch and deciding that whatever you're working on is finally ready.

Cool patches. Link to zip is dead. 😨 edit: Found it in the headtrip docs package.

Sounds great. Going to have to try those on my FV-1 pedal. Also going to try using that SVF 2p mini phaser to smear my ice delay.
